

On this stage, the unified combination of our skilled man power and wide variety of equipment is where it begins to show fruitful results. Before the final results have been reached, the processing stage on its own consists of numerous sub-processes each with its own significance. Each and every one of them is given the utmost care to avoid inconsistency and wastage of time and resources.